...ND THE SOUTHERN RAILWAYS.

The people of Georgia and of Alabama are just at this time in a state of anxiety to know whether the people of the city of Chattanooga intend to co-operate with the city of Atlanta, Colonel M. Ilsley, the engineer of the Georgia railways, stated the number of miles of railway leading from all parts of the State of Georgia to Atlanta, to be 1,000 miles, and declared that not one of these railways could be made to pay dividends unless many of them to Chattanooga to be tributary and to Chattanooga to Cincinnati, and thereby permit the people to buy and where they can get it for the least money. When Atlanta was made the capital of Georgia, it was the intention that the people of Chattanooga should be tributary to Atlanta, and that the latter city should be the market for the former. The question was then asked, Why should not Chattanooga be the capital of Georgia? The answer was, because Atlanta was the natural centre of the State, and that Chattanooga was not. In short, they were the two natural points of commerce in the State, while, in deference to the people of Chattanooga, Atlanta was made the capital. Now, it is said, Chattanooga is the natural point of commerce between the Atlantic States and the States of the Mississippi valley, and the question is asked, Why should not Atlanta be tributary to Chattanooga? In short, they are the two natural points of commerce in the State, while, in deference to the people of Atlanta, Chattanooga was made the capital. Now, it is said, Atlanta is the natural point of commerce between the Atlantic States and the States of the Mississippi valley, and the question is asked, Why should not Chattanooga be tributary to Atlanta? The question is one of giving commerce to the city in the gate of Tennessee. If the Pennsylvania road will not sell their coal, let the ports of the country be opened, that the people may get their supply elsewhere. This is the only remedy. It is useless to depend on the coal roads. It is useless to depend on the railroads. The people must depend on themselves. The people of Chattanooga must depend on themselves. The people of Atlanta must depend on themselves. The people of Georgia must depend on themselves. The people of Alabama must depend on themselves. The people of Tennessee must depend on themselves. The people of Kentucky must depend on themselves. The people of Ohio must depend on themselves. The people of Illinois must depend on themselves. The people of Indiana must depend on themselves. The people of Missouri must depend on themselves. The people of Kansas must depend on themselves. The people of Nebraska must depend on themselves. The people of Iowa must depend on themselves. The people of Minnesota must depend on themselves. The people of Wisconsin must depend on themselves. The people of Michigan must depend on themselves. The people of Illinois must depend on themselves. The people of Indiana must depend on themselves. The people of Missouri must depend on themselves. The people of Kansas must depend on themselves. The people of Nebraska must depend on themselves. The people of Iowa must depend on themselves. The people of Minnesota must depend on themselves. The people of Wisconsin must depend on themselves. The people of Michigan must depend on themselves.

We believe it was on some such charge as this, of having sullied or cast at or upon the road, the name or character of the Pennsylvania Central, that Colonel Scott was tried and acquitted. Luther "sullied" the escutcheon of Rome. Wesley "sullied" those of the Anglican Church. Sullying, therefore, is only a very convenient phrase to cloak a charge of slander. It always is, in all controversies, the disingenuous and the sullifier. In most instances, the latter has stood for deception, the latter for falsity. It is only by defying and nullifying something which is claiming to be law that the public whether it be law or not, and beyond that whether it ought to be law or not, can be decided. The best lawyer is he who can change the law.

The Detroit Free Press is guilty of an unpardonable accidental relative to Mr. Bonfoutell's public debt statement, which it makes the basis of a severe rebuke to the Chicago Tribune. It says that if the debt should be increased by the amount of the whole of North 1st the bonds only $7,170,000,000, instead of $40,000,000,000. It asserts that Mr. Bonfoutell has neglected to add the gold in the Treasury to the amount of the debt of $29,170,000. This is a serious charge, and if Mr. Bonfoutell cannot explain the matter satisfactorily he will be justly censured. Now, we do not find that any such charge is made in the Tribune's article. It says that the debt would
